

SPIREKASSEN

A cross-institutional network for PhD fellows and other early-career researchers at the Department of Public Health

Spirekassen is a collegial network dedicated to fostering a supportive and engaging environment for early-career researchers. The aim is to create a forum where members can share experiences, navigate PhD life as well as the broader research process together, and build both academic and social connections across sections.

All early-career researchers affiliated with the Department of Public Health are warmly welcome. Participation is flexible: there is no expectation to attend every meeting, and no preparation is required.

Spirekassen meets every second month for a department-funded lunch, typically including a short talk or discussion. Each meeting centres on a theme agreed upon collectively. There is also space to raise current challenges, exchange ideas, and share or receive feedback on ongoing work.
